

Nashville-based country artist from Calhoun, Louisiana, Chancie Neal, is a platinum- selling songwriter and the current record holder as the youngest World Champion Barrel Racer. One of her most popular singles on Spotify with 110,000 streams, “Rodeo Money”, tells the story of her winning ways on the rodeo circuit as a kid while showcasing her musical talent as an adult. That same kid met Luke Bryan after his show at a rodeo in Mississippi where he invited her on tour after hearing her play a few songs at 13 years old. She held that opening spot for the next seven years joining Luke for his Farm Tour, Tailgates & Tanlines Tour and Spring Break Tour where she played for large crowds, including over 100,000 people on some nights. During her seven years on the road with Luke, she was the only female artist in the lineup.

She landed a deal with Sony/ATV Music Publishing in 2012, wrote “Ducks in a Row” for the show Duck Dynasty in 2013 and her song “Hairy Christmas” recorded by Luke Bryan went platinum in 2014. Chancie has opened for numerous artists, including Jake Owen, Chris Janson, Florida Georgia Line and Pat Green, was part of the official CMA Fest lineup from 2013-16 and was featured at Tin Pan South from 2015-17.

In 2020, Chancie was reunited with Luke to put down background vocals on his song “Where Are We Goin’”, which is featured on his latest album, “Born Here, Live Here, Die Here”, that was nominated for an ACM Award for Album of the Year. She also went back to her rodeo roots by playing several shows at the National Rodeo Finals in Fort Worth, Texas and released “Hell Mary”, which became her second single to amass 110,000 streams.

In 2021, she was one of the top ticket sellers for the inaugural Nashville Nights International Songwriters Festival in Denmark, as well as the number-one requested artist for the Nashville Road Show events that included NASCAR, college football, college soccer, private events, interactive games and more. In 2022, she was asked to program a full day of music with her friends for the PBR Nashville Stampede Days outside Bridgestone Arena before singing the National Anthem before the competition inside Bridgestone.
